Decision on landfill expansion not expected until late this year

A decision by the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency on whether Hoopeston's landfill should expand is not expected until later this year.

Allied Waste, parent company of Illinois Landfills Inc., filed an application for a 120-acre expansion last September.

The EPA had 180 days to decide on the expansion, but last month requested an extension, said Jim VanWeelden of Allied Waste.

VanWeelden said the EPA requested clarification on some points of the application and added the company would provide further information in writing probably within the next 30 to 45 days.

Saying the extension request is not unusual, VanWeelden said a final EPA decision will probably come between August and December, with July through October as the most likely time frame for an answer.

The application to the EPA was filed after the Hoopeston City Council in November 1995, approved an amended host agreement governing landfill operations.

The agreement, which will not become effective until after the expansion is granted, allows the company to accept waste from 14 Illinois and Indiana counties; calls for well testing at four adjacent properties and an access road through Hoopeston Industrial Corporation property; mandates the company will provide a supply of safe drinking water if the local water supply is contaminated by landfill waste; provides for a company-build recycling center free to local

Street and alley department workers will only pick up old lumber, yard waste and small portions of cement.

Cemetery committee chooses bid

Perpetual care urns at Floral Hill Cemetery will be done by Schuler's Flowers Shop this year.

The city cemetery committee selected Schuler's bid of $30 for urns with live plants and $36 for silk, said alderperson Sue Comstock, committee chairperson.

A second bid, from Rhonda's Baskets, was also considered. That bid was $26 for live urns and $15 for artificial.

Comstock said fellow committee member Dave Borders talked with owners of both shops before the committee, which also includes John Haughee, met on April 18.

Approximately 144 urns will be filled and taken to the cemetery, Comstock said.

D.A.R.E. car show

The Vermilion County Sheriff's Department will host a car show beginning at 9 a.m. May 10 at the Tilton Foundry Ball Park, in conjunction with the 1997 Tilton Extravaganza.

Admission to the public is free. However, those displaying vehicles will be charged a $10 registration fee. To pre-register, call the Deputy Dennis Gardner, D.A.R.E. coordinator, at (217) 442-4080.

Money raised will help operate the D.A.R.E. program in 11 Vermilion County school districts, including Hoopeston Area.

The funds will purchase teaching aids and D.A.R.
